HOST ONE: Well, that was an interesting training.

HOST TWO: It sure was. Get a load of this. My camper, Brian Smith, has severe autism. And he's sensory sensitive, so he has meltdowns when his environment gets too noisy or bright.

HOST ONE: Well that's simple compared to the kid assigned to me. She's got Down syndrome and functions at the level of a five-year-old. Her name is LaTisha Weaver. You ever heard of her?

HOST ONE: Well, that was an interesting training. I'm not sure I'm up to this.

HOST TWO: Why not?

HOST ONE: The boy assigned to me has severe autism and is sensory sensitive. What do I do if he has a meltdown during the weekend?

HOST TWO: I know what you mean. How do I entertain someone with a developmental age of five for an entire weekend?

HOST ONE: Well, that was an interesting training. I'm hope I'm up for this.

HOST TWO: What's the deal?

HOST ONE: My camper has some behavior issues I'm not sure I know how to handle.

HOST TWO: You know, I have a few questions about how to handle my camper during the evening, too.

HOST ONE: There's one of those green shirt people. Maybe we should go talk to her right now.

HOST TWO: Or maybe it would be better for each of us to contact her individually to keep our campers' information confidential.
